

Grievance Redressal Survey Results

S. Naveera Fatima Rizvi

This project uses synthetic data inspired from the Grievance Redress Report (GRR-1) by Mott MacDonald Limited. The GRR report is the first output from the spot check and beneficiary feedback exercise of the National Cash Transfer Programme (NCTP) also known as the Benazir Income Support Programme (BISP).

Plot a Bubble Map to identify provinces with the highest frequency of complaints

The data indicates that the highest volume of complaints originated from Punjab and Balochistan. While the high frequency in Punjab correlates with its large population, the significant number of grievances from Balochistan is a notable outlier, given that it is the least populous province.

Reasons for Not Complaining Again

- Primary Grievances: Payment issues were the most frequent cause for complaints, followed by service quality and documentation requirements.
- Lodgment Method: The majority of complaints were submitted in person.
- Responsiveness & Resolution: Most complainants received no feedback from authorities. However, among the cases that were resolved, users reported high levels of satisfaction with the outcome.
- Follow-up Barriers: There was a low rate of repeat complaints, primarily due to time constraints and language barriers.

Q7: Why didn't you complain again?

- Dominant Issues: Payment grievances were the most prevalent issue across most provinces. Specifically, in Balochistan and AJK/GB, they accounted for 50% of the total complaint volume.
- Responsiveness Gap: A critical lack of engagement was observed: 100% of complainants in KPK and over 80% in Punjab and Balochistan were never contacted. This highlights an urgent need for a performance audit and stricter oversight of the resolution staff in these regions.
- Resolution Rates: While most provinces achieved a 100% resolution rate for the complaints they handled, Punjab showed a significant shortfall, with 50% of cases remaining unresolved.
- Accessibility Barriers: In Balochistan, language was identified as the primary barrier to lodging complaints. Implementing translation services could be a key strategic intervention for authorities to improve service accessibility.
